Education in its general sense is a form of learning in which the knowledge, skills, and habits of a group of people are frequently taken place under the guidance of others, but may also be autodidactic. A more technical definition is education as a formal process designed to improve or to change the knowledge, skills, and habits of a group of people. Education is commonly divided into stages such as preschool, primary school, secondary school, and tertiary education. Article 13 of the United Nations' International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights states that "the parents have the primary right to choose the kind of education that shall be given to their children."
